HAD A GOOD DAY.

King Edward's Condition
Continues Satisfactory.

Now Allowed To Read The Newspapers A Great Deal.

Queen Takes Recreation Now, Another
Cheering Sign.

London, July 4.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham palace at seven o'clock this evening:
The king has had a good day. His constitutional condition is satisfactory and the wound shows more active signs of repair. (Signed) Treves. Laking. Barlow.

London, July 4.—The progress of King Edward continues satisfactory. Beginning July 6, only one bulletin a day will be issued and this at nine o'clock in the morning. This arrangement will be continued until the king is entirely convalescent. The fact that Queen Alexandra and other members of the royal family drove out this afternoon is taken as a sign of the king's satisfactory condition. This is the first recreation of the kind which the queen has enjoyed since his majesty became ill. The king is now allowed to read a good deal and takes interest in looking over the newspapers, showing much amusement at the sensational reports of the operation.

BASEBALL.
The following is the result of the baseball games played yesterday:

ENDURANCE RACE.
Motor Cyclists Set Out From Boston For New York.

Boston, July 4.—A two-day endurance race from this city to New York, for motor cycles, started from Copley square this morning. Thirty-one machines of various horse power set out on the long run to New York, through Worcester and Springfield, Hartford and New Haven. The distance is 254 miles. This is the first event of the kind that has ever taken place in the country.

TERRIBLY INJURED.
Miss Mabel Ward, in an Endeavor To Win A Wager, Falls Sixty Feet From A Balloon.

Woonsocket, R. I., July 4.—Miss Mabel Ward of Milford, Mass., to win a wager of a box of candy made with a friend some days ago that she would dare to make a parachute descent from a balloon, made an ascension this afternoon at Hoag Lake Park, and by a fall of sixty feet sustained terrible injuries, from which she will more than likely not recover. She received a compound fracture of the right leg, which necessitated amputation at the thigh, a fractured jaw, besides internal injuries, cuts and bruises.

NASON—FORBES.
Prominent Strafford County Lawyer Takes unto Himself a Wife.

Dover, July 4.—Representative William S. Nason, ex-mayor of Dover, and ex-county solicitor, one of this city's best known citizens, was united in marriage last evening to Dr. Inez H. Forbes at the bride's residence on Hamilton street by the Rev. W. R. Clark of the Unitarian church. The wedding was very quiet, only a few immediate relatives being present.

AN INTELLIGENT HORSE.

Postmaster Dodge of Hampton Falls Has One of the Wisest.

Hampton Falls, July 4.—When it comes to intelligent horses, Postmaster Dodge of this village has one which may be very safely classed under this head. Not only can she go over the entire route without any guidance, but can distinguish between the Wednesday and Friday routes, which differ only in one turn, and never making a mistake or hesitating in her choice.

KITTERY POINT.

Mrs. C. P. Trumbull, Beverly, Mass., J. P. Hultman of Dover, and Miss Ida Lundberg of Roomford, R. I., have taken quarters at the Champernowne for the season.

H. H. Willey of Bar Harbor, Maine, and H. S. Seymour of Boston, two yachtsmen who sought refuge in the lower harbor from the storm of Thursday passed the day and night at the Champernowne.

Charles H. Fish, agent of the Cocheco mills at Dover, has taken the Mitchell cottage, adjoining the Champernowne, and will occupy it for the season, with his family.

Captain Edgar Frisbee and wife have been called to their former home in this village, by the serious illness of Captain Frisbee's brother, Charles Frisbee, who was injured several days ago by falling from an electric car.

Captain T. Burton Hoyt of the tug M. Mitchell Davis, was struck in the face by the lever of the boat's engine, a day or two ago, and quite severely injured. Captain Hoyt was examining the engine, at the time of the accident.

Miss Etta M. Abbott of New Bedford, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Howland Johnson.

There was no bonfire at Kittery Point on the night before the Fourth, contrary to established custom. The selectmen positively refused to allow the building of a fire within the village limits.

John Tibbitts of Alfred has taken a position with David Manson, as driver of a baggage team.

Misses Ida and Grace Fernald have gone to York Harbor for the summer, where they have secured positions as waitresses in the Yorkshire Inn.

NEW JERSEY A UNIQUE SPOT.

New Jersey is the natural summer resort for New Yorkers and for the Easterners as well for the simple reason that it is accessible. Exceptional train service, fine location, wonderful bathing facilities, and a marvelous climate are the chief attractions.

The popular route is the Sandy Hook, which leaves New York, Pier 8, N. R., and runs to Atlantic Highlands, where connection is made with the New Jersey Central for all New Jersey Coast resorts, including Seabright, Normandie, West End, Monmouth, Long Branch, Asbury Park, Allentown, Ocean Grove, Avon, Belmar, Spring Lake and Point Pleasant. The boats which compose the fleet are models in convenience and equipment, and are the fastest plying from New York.

AUTOMOBILISTS AND MOTOR CYCLISTS.

Two tourists, one riding a motor cycle and his companion, a motor triplex, stopped on the square this forenoon, where they attracted considerable attention. A good-sized crowd clustered about the machines, and asked a variety of questions of their riders, which were answered in a good natured manner.

Automobilists were plentiful about the streets today. All of the machines were of the touring pattern, and in most cases the occupants of the carriages were on their way to Portland. Many of the automobilists stopped in this city for dinner.

Almost the whole local population went to the beach on the afternoon of the Fourth.

AT SHEEPSHEAD

Major Daingerfield Carries
Off Great Prize.

Lawrence Realization Stakes, For Two-Year-Olds.

Also Lowered The Record For One Mile, Five Furlongs.

New York, July 4.—The Lawrence Realization stakes, the richest for three-year olds in the Eastern states, run at Sheepshead Bay today, was won by Major Daingerfield. Major Daingerfield was the favorite in the betting, one to three. He lowered the record for one mile, five furlongs, from 2:48-25, made by The Friar, to 2:47-35. The Rival was second and Goldsmith third.

AT THE HOTELS.

Among the people who passed the Fourth at the Portsmouth hotels were the following: William Selbach, Cambridge, Mass., Mr. and Mrs. R. B. McDonald, Attleboro, Mass., Herbert R. Gilman, New York, at the Kearsarge; S. A. Phillips, Robert Moore, Mrs. Moore, Samuel Cassel, New York, at the Merrick; F. A. Mitchell, Detroit, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. E. Clinton Bush, Baltimore, Md., Charles Mason, Boston, at the Langdon; Clarence Beebe, New York, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kirkwood, Boston, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Lowe, Lima, Ohio, at the Rockingham.

The number of western people who come east during the summer months is surprising. Even those who live within easy reach of the resorts bordering the Great Lakes seem to prefer the seashore during the summer months. The local hotel registers, every day, contain the names of many people from cities of the middle west and the Rocky Mountain region.

"Travel in the east is much different from travel in the west," said a guest at one of the hotels, this morning. "The distances between the large towns are much shorter, and the scenery observed from the car windows is more diversified. I refer, of course, to the prairie region; up among the Rocky Mountains, the scenery is diversified, all right. The eastern country is interesting, and has a romantic charm, which is almost entirely lacking in the middle west. I like to visit the east, but like a loyal westerner, of course, I prefer to live on the banks of the Mississippi."

"The experience of the Fourth," said a hotel proprietor today, "proves that travelers in this section who are unable to reach home to pass a holiday, are pretty likely to strike for Portsmouth. We were kept pretty busy all day Friday, and I think the story is the same at all the houses."

OLD HOME WEEK NOTES.

Old Home Week associations for 1902 are being formed in many towns not represented last year. Clergymen in all sections of the state are arranging appropriate exercises for Old Home Week Sunday, August 17, which will be an important day in the week's observance.

A special feature of Old Home Week this year will be the bonfires upon not less than two hundred hills and mountains on the evening of the first day, flashing from peak to peak the great joy attending the return of so many sons and daughters of New Hampshire. The first sixty towns to perfect a local association and commence arrangements for the Old Home Week meeting of 1902 are Andover, Atkinson, Boscawen, Brentwood, Bridge-water Brookline, Charlestown, Chester, Chicheston, Concord, Cornish, Croydon, Derry, Dunbarton, Epsom, Freedom, Francstown, Gilsum, Grafton, Hancock, Hopkinton, Hollis, Hudson, Kensington, Londonderry, Lisbon, Lyme, Marlborough, Middleton, Mont Vernon, New Durham, New Hampton, New London, Nashua, Newport, North Hampton, Nottingham, Peterborough, Pembroke, Pittsfield, Plainfield, Piermont, Raymond, Salisbury, Sandown, Sandwich, Somersworth, Springfield, South Hampton, Stratham, Surry, Temple, Washington, Webster, Wear, Whitefield, Winchester and Wolfeboro.

A TREMENDOUS CROWD.

Pittsburg, July 4.—A tremendous crowd listened to President Roosevelt at Schenley Park today, when he delivered an extended address. Later in the day the president was entertained by H. C. Frick at the latter's residence.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The Rev. O. S. Baketel, D. D., presiding elder of the Concord district, in company with Mrs. Baketel, is visiting a few days in this city. He will preach at the forenoon service and assist in administering the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The union service of the church and Epworth League will meet at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Ellis will assist in leading the meeting. Subject: "The Father's Care." Mt. 6:25-34. Ps. 10:12 and 14.

FACTS CONCERNING CITY LANDS AND BUILDINGS.

Editor of the Herald: There are times when man needs to "Take it to the Lord in prayer," but after a study of city government ways, it seems better to take it to the public in print.

It is not my object to occupy your space for purely personal reasons, but since city property may suffer or public privileges be abridged by reason of insufficient appropriation for the committee on city lands and buildings, it was thought best that the people should see the figures, deduce reasons, and place all blame where it belongs.

In anticipation of 1902 taxes there was appropriated by the last city government five hundred dollars for the above committee. Of this sum $439 was expended before March 11th, 1902, leaving $61 available for the new committee to use, beginning on that date. To this was added $50, appropriated April 10 by the present city council. This gave the committee $110 to keep up insurance, make repairs, etc., from March 12 to June 20, on which date $1300 was appropriated to cover all bills pertaining to city lands and buildings for the year 1902.

From this $1300, then, we must deduct $439, amount paid by the old board, and $150 arbitrarily appropriated for repairs on bath house, giving a total of $710 to run this department from March 12 to Dec. 31, almost ten months.

As a glance at the annexed estimate will show, insurance, lighting clocks and other fixed charges will alone exceed $1200.

In making this estimate attention was given not only to the present condition of city property, but also to past expenditures, a summary of which is given below:

The chairman of this committee appeared before the finance committee and asked for $3000, a voluntary cut of $2452 from last year. A bill carrying this amount passed its first reading in the council, but was lost in the committee on second reading. Later a bill carrying $1300, a cut of $1452, from last year, was introduced and passed for reasons well-known to those who have looked over the situation.

The following estimate and past appropriations and expenditures are submitted for public consideration:

Estimated	Actual	Estimated	Actual
Insurance	$1200	Lighting	$100
Fixed charges	$100	Repairs	$100
City building station	$25	Stairs	$100

CONDUCTOR KINGSBURY'S FIND.

Friday evening Conductor Kingsbury of the local electric road picked up a pasted box which had been left on one of the seats in a car on the Plains loop. He was about to throw the box away when he heard a rattle inside and removed the cover. The box contained something like $50 in bills and a little small change. Later it was returned to the owner, a member of the Gun club, and Conductor Kingsbury was rewarded for his honesty.

KEPT OPEN HOUSE.

Knights of Columbus Entertain Their Friends on Thursday Evening.

The Knights of Columbus kept open house in their attractive quarters on Bow street, on the night before the Fourth.

The doors were open to all friends of the knights, both ladies and gentlemen, and the privilege thus extended was taken advantage of very generally.

It was a strictly informal affair, and the guests amused themselves in the way which best suited them. Many enjoyed dancing in the upper hall, others played whist in one of the lower rooms and still others enjoyed the cool breeze from the platform overlooking the river in the rear of the building.

It was intended if the night had been fine, to illuminate this platform and arrange for an outdoor whist party, but the threatening weather led to the abandonment of this plan, and the whist tables were set inside.

The knights were indefatigable in their efforts to entertain their guests and each and everyone passed a most enjoyable evening.

Light refreshments were served, consisting of ice cream, cake and lemonade.

The rooms were kept open till far into the morning, and those friends of the members of the order who visited the different bonfires availed themselves of the hospitality of the rooms from time to time.

ABOUT BIRDS.

In an unusual and interesting article on bird life in The Outlook's magazine number for July, Mr. W. E. D. Scott, curator of ornithology at Princeton, talks about the ease with which relations may be established between man and bird. Among other things he says:

Birds out-of-doors in the struggle for existence pretty well appreciate that, as a rule, bad things happen when boys and men are around, and they are fearful and on their guard. In places where birds have been molested by man, as in deserts, on the islands of the Pacific, and in parts of Arizona where I have been, birds have no fear. In the latter place I remember going to a bird's nest, and wishing to see the eggs. I had to gently lift the birds off, found out what I wished, and put her back. She did not appear to be disturbed or alarmed by this. Nor do I think that there was anything peculiar and special in my attitude; this bird had never been disturbed by man, and felt no fear; there was nothing about it, nor was it because of any peculiar influence which I possessed or exercised. I observed a few simple rules—that is, I did not make a noise or move rapidly, but that is all. For instance, in Central park, New York, I have seen a policeman after a few instructions, stand still, holding something in his fingers which birds like, and I have seen a timorous fly and take it, slowly, because people there had established such a relation; the man had no special power; he was only a big burly policeman, who was not particularly in sympathy with nature. He simply put himself into the right attitude towards bird life, and it responded.

It is easy to establish the right relationship with birds. I remember once an elm tree blew down in front of our house in which there was a nest of young flickers. I did not wish to bring them into the house, as I did not care to have my birds hear their notes, so put them into an old birdcage and left them outside. We fed them with the regular bird food, and they grew up all right. They became so tame that when the door was left open they flew out and went about, but always came back to the cage, and when the house door opened and any one appeared they fairly yelled with delight and begged to be fed.

The brisk demand for pedigreed animals of all classes is not a mere passing craze. A history of the development of our great middle west would be far from complete did it not embody the accomplishment of breeders of improved farm animals. There have been times in the past when undue emphasis was placed upon pedigree, where individual merit was overshadowed by lineage considerations. During such times beginners encountered much risk in their early purchases, as there was bound to be a strong reaction when the business stood upon a foundation so false. However, our fathers passed through the deep waters, leaving to us an inheritance invaluable. It seems almost as though their errors were necessary to place the improved stock business on the firm footing upon which it stands today.

One is apt to get the impression, during the sale season particularly, that the country is flooded with improved stock. Such is not the case. There should be a thousand bidders for every blooded animal sold. The best interests of our country are allied with those of individuals, and we can conceive of no greater display of loyalty to oneself as well as to country than may be manifested in an effort to improve farm animals. When one stops to consider the enormous number of inferior animals and in conjunction with this the great improvement that may be imparted by even one cross of a blooded sire, it is surprising that there is not an even greater demand for recorded sires.

The test argument that can be given in favor of transplanting the scrub or even the grade by the blooded animal is that there stands no record of one who has established himself in the breeding of animals of the latter class and afterward gone back to the scrub or grade. Even for common cows a few hundred dollars put into a male of good blood and form is the best investment a man can make. The improvement in one crop of calves will more than pay the bill. We should like to see more competition in sale rings coming from the small farmer, even though he be the owner of a comparatively small herd of cows. There never was a more opportune time to begin the improvement by the employment of a meritorious registered sire.—Home-stead.

For Scours in Calves.

To cure scours in calves put about two quarts of boiling water on so much tansy as will make a strong tea, says E. K. Levan in National Stockman. Cover and let stand till cool, when it is ready for use. Give one third of a pint at a dose—if a bad case more—morning, noon and night, but always before letting calf drink. Keep on till you see the calf is all right. With us tansy grows without any attention on most every farm. The Pennsylvania Germans call it cow bitters. Please let some one give it a trial just to see what it will do. I have used it on a good many calves, always with success.

Plants For Silage.

To those who ask about the adaptability of the cowpea to the making of silage we would say that the best use of the pea is in hay. Indian corn is the great ensilage plant. Cowpeas will make silage that the cows will eat readily, but it is always sour stuff. Soy beans make better silage than they do hay, but the cowpeas make such good hay that it seems to be a pity to put them in the silo. Then, too, having corn silage alone, the farmer can balance his ration better with the peas than if they were mixed in the silo. We do not recommend cowpea silage.—Practical Farmer.

The Pan-American Test.

Guernseys won in butter production at the six months' test at the Pan-American exposition in spite of the fact that one of the best cows was sick several days during the test. The value of the butter churned of each breed during the six months of the test was as follows: Guernsey, $220; Jersey, $215; Ayrshire, $213; Holstein, $193; Red Poll, $192; Brown Swiss, $177; French Canadian, $182; Shorthorn, $166; Polled Jersey, $161; Dutch Belted, $112.—Exchange.

A Famous Milker.

In a British journal is announced the death of a famous milker. It was a crossbred Shorthorn-Guernsey. She was in her ninth year when she died. Some idea of her value may be known from the fact that in the 10½ months prior to her death she had produced at the rate of 1,500 gallons of milk per year. On the day before her death she gave sixty-six pounds of milk.

The Heifer That Kicks.

To cure a kicking heifer tie a rope around one hind leg down near the foot and then take a slip hitch around the horns, says an experienced dairyman. Now make her kick to her heart's content. Then shift over to the other side. One dose was enough for the one I had. For a colt I would put on a surcingle with a ring on the side to slip the rope through. Hitch first around the neck and then a noose around the nose.

Growth in Dairy Business.

The first cow census in the United States occurred in 1840. Since then they have been counted every ten years. There are now thought to be about 18,000,000 dairy cattle in this country, which allows one cow for about every four persons.

The Dairy Type.

Length of body and depth of barrel are gauges of lungs and digestive capacity. Sloping shoulders, thin thighs and angularity rather than roundness of body are prized as outward signs of the dairy as distinguished from the beef type.

A GOOD ONE.

S. L. Stewart of Newburg, N. Y., sends to Hoard's Dairyman a description of his new barn and one exterior and two interior views, which are here reproduced.

The dimensions of the barn, which is a one-story cow barn, are 38 feet wide, 120 feet long, 10 feet eave height. The width is divided about as follows: Walk between cows, 5 feet; drop, 1 foot 4 inches; platform for cow, 4 feet 8 inches; manger, including the thickness of the concrete 3 feet, drive between rows about 9 feet. The mangers are made in four sections, with sixteen cows to a section.

THREE VIEWS OF THE BARN.

tion, except one section, where the platform is made 4 feet wide at one end and tapered to 4 feet 6 inches at the other end, and the space for each cow starts in this section, with 3 feet from centers to 3 feet 6 inches, which is the width of stalls for all the others.

In this section all the two-year-old and three-year-old heifers are kept, graded according to size, thus insuring clean stalls. I might say right here that these ideas are mostly from your Wisconsin experiment station bulletins, with changes that suggested themselves to us as we progressed with the work. The floors, mangers, etc., are all concrete, and the side wall from the ceiling to floor is plastered with portland cement on wire lathing, thus making the whole interior from ceiling to floor cement and iron. The stanchion frames are all made of iron pipe, as are also the partitions between the cows, which consists, as the photograph shows, of a single iron pipe bent to enter the floor about sixteen inches from the end of the platform, which leaves plenty of room for the milker.

The stanchions are the Taylor patent steel, made of angle iron and hung on an eye bolt, which allows them to turn in any direction, thus giving the cow the fullest liberty. If cow ties are preferred, you will notice rings on the iron upright, which can be used in place of the stanchions, as the iron pipe frame work is spaced right for either.

This stanchion arrangement may not be as good as some of the other iron stall fixtures, but it is clean, strong, durable and easily disinfected, if necessary.

The amount of cheap cheese made and put on the market should not be judged by the skin and part skin milk cheeses. These latter are made for a distinct purpose, and there is a wide market for them, says E. S. Warren in American Cultivator. Cheese-makers use skin and part skin milk with a full knowledge that the results will be of a certain inferior character, and the cheese is so marked when sent to market. The markets are satisfied if they get a few cents a pound.

But inferior cheese made from full cream milk and spoiled in the curing, keeping or some other way is a direct loss to the maker. The trouble is something that should be averted by following carefully rules that have been discovered through years of study and experiment. There are of course many reasons why cheese does not come out satisfactory when good full cream milk is used. Off flavor of cheese of this character is frequently due to lack of acid in the cheese or to hot curing rooms. In the trade such cheese has such a strong odor after being kept a short time that it is marked down heavily. The remedy is to see that the temperature of the curing rooms is better regulated and in preventing acidity. This latter is generally due to business in making. When the cheese is made every other day, too much starter is used, and the attempt to hurry the work causes the trouble.

What Pays?

The cows on many farms would be considered first class producers if each cow's product amounted to 200 pounds of butter per year, yet it is claimed by some of the best dairymen that 200 pounds of butter per year from a cow does not pay. Those who aim to make the most butter from their herds have the standard up to 300 pounds per year, and some fix the limit higher. Every farmer can have the individual members of his herd reach that amount by breeding for better cows every year.

Bulletin 152, New Jersey station, says on the subject of how germs get into milk. In the first place, a good many germs are living in the milk while it is yet in the udder of the cow and, in the next place, a good many more fall into the milk pail from those floating in the air, being caught in the streams of descending milk. Still others are introduced clinging to the particles of dust, dirt, hair, chaff, etc., that become loosened from the udder and adjacent surface of the cow and from the hands, arms, etc., of the milker, and in fly-time from the whisking tail of the pestered animal. It is the presence of numerous particles of this sort which is responsible for the general practice of straining milk, but no strainer is fine enough to retain the smallest particles, and, least of all, the germs that have been washed out of the particles. In those dairies where the practice of keeping cows and stalls thoroughly clean has not been adopted the dirt that most frequently gets into milk consists of particles of manure. The presence of even a little manure imparts to the milk the peculiar flavor called "cowy," as though it were the distinctive odor of this domestic species, but this flavor is quite distinct from the odor of new pure milk (also found in the cow's breath, over which poets have raved in ecstasy). In these days of "modern dairy progress" the production of "cowy" milk is both inexcusable and reprehensible. Milk has a strong attraction for odors and readily absorbs any predominant odor of the air, etc., it is in contact with; hence it is not strange that it extracts the odor of the dirt that falls into it. In fact, if the milk cow's food has any peculiar flavor it affects the milk. These various disagreeable flavors in milk are of less consequence than the fact that milk receives the germs that inhabit the dirt which gets into it. Of all dirt, manure is the richest in germ content, and what is even more important, it contains germs that are parasitic in the intestines and hence are liable to produce disease.

Favors South Dakota Plan.
South Dakota's plan of licensing dairymen and requiring creamery operators to pass a state examination is approved by Dairy Commissioner McCann of Minnesota. He says: "Co-operative creameries, hiring inexperienced butter makers, are one of the greatest existing evils which have crept into the dairy system and the cause of more dissatisfaction and ruin than all others combined. It is one of the encouraging features of the creamery trust. One year's experience perhaps was enough five or ten years ago, but is altogether too short now, as a man can only learn a few of the fundamental principles of the business in one year, and the second should be devoted to practice and study, then a turn at a dairy school to learn something of the science. After such experience and training a man may be in a position to take charge of a creamery, and if he is an adept scholar, ambitious, industrious and willing to work and learn, he may make a good man with a few years' experience and study."

The Milk Cow's Day.
Butter will be better unless all signs fail, says Breeder's Gazette. The dairyman has been envious of his beekeeping neighbor, but the tide is now turning in the direction of the milk cow. It could not be otherwise. Some weeks ago we drew attention to the fact that the full contract price for milk afforded to makers no margin of profit and that prices must be advanced to city consumers of both milk and butter. That advance has come and seems still to come. Joined with the shortage of grain and forage is the unfortunate cold, dry and backward spring, and the lateness of the grass and its weakness on the parched and exhausted pastures of last summer have added materially to the expense at which milk has been made.

Alfalfa Instead of Bran.
A Texas dairyman has found he can use alfalfa as a substitute for bran with good results in feeding milk cows. As a test he submitted for three weeks an equal quantity by weight of cut alfalfa hay for the bran he had been feeding. The cows gave an increased yield of both milk and butter as a result of the change to alfalfa. The alfalfa was cut to half inch lengths.

The analyses of bran and alfalfa show a composition almost identical, and it is not to be wondered that the feeding trial should show the same results. The dairyman who has a few acres of alfalfa can be very independent of all kinds of combinations that tend to raise the cost of feed unduly.

Always Finds a Market.
With proper facilities any one who understands the principle of butter making can make a grade of butter that will command the highest price. When you have a really fine grade of butter, it is not difficult to sell it for a good price. If you are close enough to a good town, private customers can easily be secured that will take all you make at a good price. If you haven't a good large town close by, then you can ship to a city market and get good prices.

Site the Cream.
One thing is often overlooked, and that is the thorough stirring of the cream every time a fresh lot is added. In doing this care must be taken to mix not only the bottom cream, but also from the sides, as cream adhering to the sides and not being distributed or mixed with the fresher becomes decomposed in a measure and imparts a bad flavor to the whole lot of cream when it is put into the churn.

Zinc Salts in Fruit.

The export of various forms of dried fruit from this country has been considerably hampered of late by the discovery that a large part of it is contaminated with zinc salts. It was at first supposed that the presence of the zinc was due to the zinc trays in which the fruit was dried, and their use was abandoned. The zinc, however, continued to appear in the fruit. Herr Sulzstein of Gorlitz has recently conducted an investigation to determine its source. He finds that if zinc is present in the soil or atmosphere it is readily taken up by the plants and fruit trees, and as a considerable portion of the ordinary fertilizers contains zinc salts it is very probable that the latter are responsible for the contaminated fruit.

With a nail brush and some warm water thoroughly clean away all traces of the gelatin coating or image bearing film so that you have nothing left but the clean celluloid. Lay this aside to dry thoroughly. Then cut up into small bits, place in a bottle and add methylated spirit, shaking the bottle occasionally. Adjust the proportions of celluloid and solvent (spirit) so as to get a fairly thick, creamy solution. Apply this to the label, and you have a water proof varnish, says a writer in Popular Science News.

Either a small brush or the end of a feather can be used for applying this varnish. This will not only keep the labels clean and legible, but will make them hold tight to the bottles.

Ingenuous Life Raft.

A simple and ingenuous life raft resembles the ordinary cork ring life preserver, but is larger and more "ship shape." A transverse band serves as a seat, so that only the lower part of the body is immersed. The craft is provided with a knotted rope, down which the passenger clammers after the boat has been thrown overboard; also with paddles and an automatic alarm bell.

Standing Up For the Label.

The Allied Printing Trades Council of Chicago has sent out notices to the various unions asking their membership to patronize those theaters which carry the union printing label on their programmes. Until recently all the theater programmes were furnished by a nonunion printing establishment in Monroe street, but paid a bonus to the playhouses for the privilege. Efforts were made to unionize this house, but failed, when the printing trades committee looked around for a concern which would turn out theater programmes with the union label and found Clyde W. Riley had the necessary facilities. At the last meeting of the Printing Trades Council the committee made its report, and this concern was endorsed.

Won't Stay Retained.

This notice appears on a Flushing steamer: "Passengers should obtain a receipt for all provisions taken on board this boat and are requested to retain the same."

He Reasoned Wrong.

"It's all knowing how to reason," said the Pittsburgh man as he sighed in a sorrowful way.

"I owned a house and lot in a town in our state and was getting a good rent for them when a congregation built a church right on the line. I reasoned it out that the place was spoiled, and when I was offered three fifths of its former value I made haste to close the deal. I pat myself on the back over that bit of good luck."

"And wasn't it good luck?"
"Not a bit of it. I'm a clean thousand dollars out of pocket for reason being laid out to. The chap who bought my place had twin babies, a piano, a fiddle and a barking dog, and the congregation hadn't accepted that church over four Sundays when it raised a purse and bought him out for twice the value of the place." ## Miss Simpkins, Spinster

By ZOE ANDERSON NORRIS

Copyright, 1901, by Zoe Anderson Norris

By the window Miss Simpkins sat knitting. The young girl stood before her.

"I know by the way you're standing there, Elizabeth," said she, "a-twisting your apron strings and a-shilling, just what you've come to tell me. You and Ned are engaged. You're going to get married."

"I knew it the minute I laid eyes on you. Well, sit down in that rocking chair over there. Draw it close and make yourself comfortable, and excuse me if I go right along with my work. I want to finish this heel. I can knit and talk at the same time."

"Now, what I want to know is this: What makes you young girls come to me with your love secrets—me, an old maid, going on forty and alone in the world? What are you trying to do—make me wish I was young and pretty again, darning and frisking and gallivanting around with the boys, getting engaged and buying wedding finery to sew on and lay away in presses to take peeps at when nobody's a-looking? Is that what you're trying to do? Because if it is you ain't succeeding. I can tell you that. I'm glad that I'm single. I'd rather be Sarah Simpkins, spinster, nearing forty or thereabout, independent and self supporting, looking to nobody for nothing, than married to the best man living. So there! You needn't be snickering. It's the truth."

The busy needles flashed.

"Just take a look at all the women my age that married when I was a young girl," she went on presently. "What's happened to 'em? Everything under the sun that could happen short of lightning striking 'em dead. There's Liza Banks, for instance. See how her husband up and died and left her with a big family to support and nothing to support 'em on. What with working day in and day out she did manage to raise them children, and raise 'em well. Then some of 'em died and the others married, and now there she is all by herself in two rooms taking in sewing for a living and lonesomer than I am, if anything, after all her hard work and trouble."

"Another is Sue Chambers. There never was a prettier young girl raised in these parts than Sue Chambers. She married one of the handsomest men here too. We all thought he was a catch, and some of us envied Sue when she carried him off. We didn't envy her long. He turned out to be a drunkard, and now she's taking care of him and the children, doing any sort of work she can lay her hand to to keep 'em from starvation."

"Who'd ever have thought Sue's husband would have turned out to be a drunkard? Nobody, and that's what I'm trying to drill into you. You can't tell a single, solitary thing about a man from appearances."

"Don't set there a-laughing. I know what you're thinking—sour grapes—but it ain't. Why, child, I could have had my pick of the best, but I wouldn't marry a mother's son of 'em, because I could not make up my mind to take no risks."

"Tut! It's worse than shooting craps or buying tickets in a lottery or fishing in a fish pond at a church social—this thing of marrying a man. You can't never tell what you're going to get—never! You can take my word for it I ain't been married, but I've sort of set off and looked on at people what has been, and that's the safest way."

"You're going to get married."

way, if I knew anything about it. And I ain't been looking on all these years for nothing. I've learned a thing or two, and one of 'em is that when it comes to this here question of men most women gets rattle brained and dizzy. If you could see the way Sue Chambers chirps around, happy as a lark the minute that good for nothing husband of hers sobers up a bit, a-honoring of him and treating him just like he was a baby, trying to get him to sign the pledge and quit for good, ready to work her finger ends off for him if he will only quit, stopping her work to smile at him, setting there in the chimney corner—lazy, trifling, bumbling—smoking his pipe and holding his hands and taking it easy when he ought to be out in the fields plowing, you'd be like I am—you'd think the women was fools the way they hug their chums.

"So, now, seeing all that, even if you do come here a-perking and a-smiling this spring morning, when the flowers is just beginning to bloom and the birds is mating and the bumblebees is buzzing, a-talking about that sweet-heart of yours, you don't make me wish, not for one single minute, that I had a sweetheart myself, not for one single minute. You don't make me regret the long years I've been an old maid, setting here by this window of mine, watching the boys and girls pair off, thinking, every pair of 'em, that they're going to be the happiest pair in all creation and ending by being the most miserable till some other couple outtops 'em in misery. Tuck in that lock of hair at the back of your neck. Maybe that was what made Ned fall in love with you—all them lovelocks dangling around that pretty white neck of yours. Tuck it in."

Elizabeth tucked the lovelock in, while Miss Simpkins, dropping her knitting, looked out at the yellow sunshine slanting across the green grass.

"Women ain't got no sense," she repeated reflectively, "and it seems to me they ain't never going to learn none. Rather than live by themselves—and what's more independent than living by yourself, if it is kinder lonesome sometimes? Yes, it is kinder lonesome sometimes, but it's a long sight better than taking such awful chances as some of 'em take. A woman won't expectly put her head in the fire, and burn it off, but she'll marry a man she hasn't known more'n three weeks or a month. She'll do that. And what can you know of a man in that short time? How do you know but what he's a brawler or a outthout or a bigamist or a thief? You can't. My kind, but women is fools!"

The needles flashed again.

"Most men are full of faults, girl," she recommenced by and by, "as a dog is of fleas, but I want to tell you, Elizabeth, that it ain't always the glaring faults that makes a woman most miserable; it's the little meannesses. It's Jane Lawson I've got in mind now. I'd rather be dead and buried than married to that husband of hers."

"He ain't no burglar, he ain't no common thief, and maybe he ain't no bigamist, but they're generally pretty cute about keeping that dark; but he's stingy and mean. According to my way of thinking, there ain't nothing warps a woman's life so much as meanness in a man, because a woman's such a queer sort of creature she gets to be a looking glass, reflecting the man. Jane, living with him, has got so she's saved and scrimp till she don't know nothing but saving and scrimping. For instance, one morning last week I went to see her, and there she was 't the back door bargaining with the vegetable man for corn rubbush instead of full ears of corn. 'They comes cheaper,' says she, turning to me, and she wa'n't ashamed either. That husband of hers had changed her nature so she couldn't stoop to nothing too small to please him."

"I wish you could have seen her when she was a girl. You'd never believe she could have shriveled so. I'd hate to be in that woman's shoes. I'd rather live by my lone self all the rest of my natural life." And she knitted.

"That man," she resumed after a time, "would hang on to the dollars till the eagles flew off. He'd give a plugged nickel to a blind beggar if he gave any, which ain't likely. Before I'd marry a man like that I'd be an old maid for the rest of my life, if it is lonesome, and it is lonesome."

The needles clicked hard.

"If you could only catch the least bit of an idea of a man's nature from the looks of him," she complained, "it wouldn't be so terribly risky. But you ain't. Deceiving! They are deceiving as ye-ye-ye-ye-ye-ye. Why, a man will tell you he loves you better than anybody else in the world, then go and tell the same thing to some other 'woman in less than half an hour. He'll make love to some other woman, with a wife at home and a baby in the cradle. He'll come home staggering, hunting for the keyhole with both hands, and say he's just come from prayer meeting. He'll go the Lord knows where and stay till the Lord knows when, then come back and tell you he's been downtown to see a man on particular business—business that had to be attended to, that couldn't wait. 'There ain't no trusting of 'em. The truth ain't in 'em, and that's the gospel truth sure's I'm setting by this window knitting.'

She raised her head and looked up at the girl.

"But what's the use preaching to you, Elizabeth?" she argued. "You are like all the rest. You've got your head set to marry, and marry you will. You've got to go through the mill if you're ground to powder. But I will say, from all appearances, you've made a good choice, and I'd calculate you are likely to be happy if there was any dependence to be put in appearances, which there ain't. If you will put that little yellow head of yours into the fire, all I've got to say is I hope it won't be singed. I hope you'll be happy, girl. I've watched you grow up from a little tot in aprons, and I'd hate to see you unhappy. Maybe Ned'll be good to you. Maybe he won't let you work your little fingers off slaving for him. But, then, if he does you'll be just as happy that way or think you are and that amounts to pretty much the same thing. There are plenty of women like that. They keep their love so warm—and how they do it, I'm more than I can see, with the cold blasts forever blowing—that they make believe they are happy to the very last."

"There was Kate Saunders. Money couldn't have made me marry the man she married, he was that overbearing and purse proud, but you should have seen her on her deathbed."

"Don't go away," she begged him. "I want to see you till I can't see nothing no more."

Crooking her forefinger, she measured the heel of the stocking, which was now almost finished.

"Women is fools," she reiterated sentimentally.

Elizabeth arose.

"I must go," said she.

"Must you? Where is that little sun-bonnet of yours, then?" She got up to look for it. "Here, let me tie it on for you. Are you sure you can't stay awhile longer? Then come back real soon, Elizabeth, and tell me about your wedding finery. Are you going to stand under a wedding bell? I'd like to hear about that even if there ain't no earthly chance of my ever standing under one myself. But what ad' I talking about? I had my chances with the rest, and I wouldn't take 'em. Look at all these years I've had to live alone because I wouldn't take 'em." And she sighed as she followed the girl to the door.

"Here," she said, "let me brush that speck of dust off your skirt before you go into the street. That's a pretty skirt of yours, Elizabeth. I like to see young things like you wear bright colors. They are so becoming! Now, for me, starting down hill and beginning to whiten for the grave, anything will do—gray, drab, black, solem, somber shades that suit my somber life, forever setting here all by myself knitting. Is that your wedding ring? Take it off and let me see it. It's a beautiful ring."

"The Bible says, 'It is not meet for man to live alone.' Then what about a woman? It's a thousand times worse, because a woman, made out of a rib, is naturally sort of helpless and dependent, and, there's no use talking, they ain't altogether happy, none of 'em, unless they've got some good for nothing man around to lean on or to pretend to lean on. They're mighty shaky feeds, most of 'em, I can tell you.

"LET ME TIE IT ON FOR YOU."

"Here's your ring. Let me put it on with a wish. I mustn't tell the wish or it won't come true, but you know I ain't wishing you nothing at all but happiness, Elizabeth."

"And now run along, or what with thinking of your life, so bright and promising, and comparing it with mine, setting cooped up in this cottage from morning till night, like some swilling old plant in the shadow, pretty soon I'll be weeping and wailing. Go along now, and goody."

She watched the girl through the gate, and on out of sight; then, returning to her chair by the window, she took up her knitting.

The needles once more flashed in the sunlight that by now had strayed across the yard, coming dangling in at the window, seeming, like the brilliant promise of Elizabeth's life, to mock her loneliness.

A solitary tear fell upon the point of one of the needles.

Then methodically, almost musically, they clicked into the silence of the room.

THE FIGHT IS ON
Where Shall That Big Battleship Be Built?
All The Government Navy Yards Lined Up In Eager Competition.

New Hampshire Congressional Delegation Alive To The Situation.

The fight is on between the various navy yards of the country for the honor of constructing the first battleship which congress has authorized to be built at a government plant.

Portsmouth, Boston, New York, Norfolk, Mare Island—these and the rest are lined up in keen competition. The supporters of each have already begun to bring pressure to bear in behalf of their favorite yard.

If natural advantages alone were sufficient to tip the scales, Portsmouth would win hands down. As conditions are, however, the prize cannot be secured merely by sitting idly by.

The New Hampshire congressional delegation are, happily, well aware of this. Senator Gallinger and Burnham, with Representatives Sulloway and Currier, are alive to the situation.

These four representatives of the state at the National capital will soon pay a visit to this city, probably week after next. Their coming will likely have an important bearing on the issue. The members of the Maine delegation are expected to be here at the same time.

The New Hampshire delegation have extended to the committee on naval affairs of the National house of representatives a cordial invitation to visit Portsmouth, at such time during the summer as may suit their convenience, promising to show them a splendidly-equipped navy yard and to introduce them to famous Henderson's Point.

This invitation was communicated to the committee through Hon. George E. Foss, the chairman.

The members of the naval committee, in addition to Mr. Foss, are as follows: Alston G. Dayton, Henry C. Loudenslager, Thomas S. Butler, Melville Bull, Sydney E. Mudd, James B. Watson, Robert G. Cousins, Robert W. Taylor, Ernest W. Roberts, Montague Lessler, Adolph Meyer, Parish Carter Tate, John F. Rixey, William W. Kitchin, Willard D. Vandiver, Charles K. Wheeler—Fred B. Whitney, clerk, and Fred J. Turner, assistant clerk.

In acknowledging the receipt of the invitation, Chairman Foss wrote Senator Gallinger as follows:

"I desire to thank you, and through you the congressional delegation of New Hampshire, for the kind invitation which you have given the members of the naval committee of the house of representatives to visit Portsmouth the coming summer, and I will be pleased to present the invitation to the committee at my earliest opportunity."

It is probable that the members of the Maine delegation will visit this city at the same time with the New Hampshire delegation.

In connection with this battleship issue, the remarks of Congressman Sulloway in the house of representatives on Saturday, June 28, are of timely interest.

Mr. Sulloway was replying to Mr. Fitzgerald of New York, who had shown a surprising ignorance of the conditions at the Portsmouth navy yard "where there is no water."

Mr. Sulloway rammed the true facts home in sharp style, as follows:

Mr. Sulloway. "Mr. speaker, I am amazed and astonished at the statement made here by the gentleman from New York in reference to the Portsmouth navy yard. It is the oldest yard for ship building under the American flag. The English were building ships for the royal navy in that yard in 1690. It is the only yard under our flag from Eastport to the Rio Grande where you have a navy yard with deep water. There is 60 feet of water at low tide there. And yet the gentleman from New York [Mr. Fitzgerald], living in a city where they have to dredge, and where the government has paid millions and millions of dollars to plow out a channel so they can get in and out of the navy yard, stands up here and says they have not got water enough down there to drink."

"Now, gentlemen, I am not drawing on my imagination; I am stating what I know and what is the fact. The gentleman never was at Portsmouth; he never knew anything about it. Talk about no water. Point me to a yard anywhere you have got water except at Portsmouth. That channel is worn out of the solid granite like the channel below Niagara. It is swept by the waters of the ocean as they go in, and it is swept by the tide as it goes out. There never has to be any dredging there. As I said, there is a depth of 60 feet at low tide. That is the condition of things, and not only that, you are building there the best dry dock under our flag. Why? Because it is the only place where you can evidently get in one of the big battleships. It is the largest one, has the deepest water, and it is not a Port Royal, where, if you get one battleship in, you are continually waiting for an accident or an act of Providence to get it out. [Laughter.] It is a yard that you can get in and out of at all times. The largest ships that float can go in and out."

But here is Henderson's Point, that sticks out there like a war flag, your nose or finger, and now the fact that the repairs on the great battleships are going to be made there, although you can get them in and get them out, there is some danger from this war, and the purpose is to knock it off."

"Now, the gentleman from New York said they do not do any business at Portsmouth. With a single exception, it is the best-equipped yard we have, and only a few months ago the commandant said to me while I was looking it over that it was now in a condition, barring a few small tools, to build a battleship from start to finish. Yet the gentleman from New York thinks there is not water enough there for a muskrat to swim in. [Laughter.]

"Now, gentlemen, I do not want to take up time, but that is the condition of things; and if there ever was an appropriation that was prudent, if there ever was an appropriation that the public weal demanded, it is this appropriation for the Portsmouth navy yard."

ON THE DIAMOND.

Fred Doe displayed poor judgment when he released Pitcher Miran.

Weakness in batting may prove fatal to the Chicago Americans' chances, if they do not brace up.

The lately organized Northern Maine league is endeavoring to make raids on the New England league teams.

Young Doherty, the pitcher, who was not good enough for New York last year, is making good with the Pittsburgh champions.

There is no ball team today in the class of the past Boston, Brooklyn and Baltimore champions, according to the Boston Journal.

Unglaub, the former Worcester player, now with Sacramento, accepted twelve chances at short without an error in a recent game.

It is reported that the Western league will quit about $75,000 to the bad on the season, while the American association ledger will show up a little better. And yet, it is confidently predicted that the American association will soon give up the ghost.

"Dike" Varney made his first appearance in the box for the Cleveland Americans on Thursday, against Detroit. He was wild and was hit fairly hard. In the first inning he presented five runs to the opposing team, by wild pitches and bases on balls. He was finally relieved by Bernhard and Cleveland pulled out the game in the tenth inning.

A baseball pipe dreamer the other day suggested the organization of a new league with teams in Portland, Biddeford, Newburyport, Lynn and Salem. He was confident that the scheme was practicable, and even went so far as to suggest a name—the Northern league. It is true that the cities named are all of good size, and should be able to support ball teams and the transportation item would be a very unimportant one. Perhaps someone will take up the scheme next year.

It is rumored that Billy Hamilton of the Haverhills is suffering from appendicitis and that he will not be back in the game again, this season.

John B. Pugsley, who did such good work on the Bates college nine, has gone to Warren, Maine, to play in the Knox county league.

Oliver Lamere, the brilliant fielder of Rochester has taken a position in a hotel at Pittsfield and will play on the team at that place.

That 5-4 charm still rests on the Dover team, and in last Friday's game at Concord the home team defeated them by a score of the same size. Small wonder that Manager Doe wears a worried look in a game until after the fatal limit is passed.

"Buster" Burrill was fined $50 for throwing the ball wrong to third base at Concord Friday. This is a savage fine for a man who always plays his very best mon on the Dover team. A fine like that is not calculated to inspire respect for the manager who pronounced it—Somersworth Free Press.

ABOUT GEORGE HALL.

George Hall, the popular comedian, who has been seen in this city several times with The American Girl company, closed his season and three years' engagement with A. Q. Scammon in Rockland, last week. The performance at Rockland was the 85th time that Mr. Hall has played the part of "Boss Bolter." Mr. Hall did not miss a single performance during his lengthy engagement in this play. Next season Mr. Hall will be seen in a new play under the management of Gus Rothner.

Quite a number of Portsmouth people passed the Fourth boating down the river.

CLIPPINGS.

American conquest of the world is further evidenced by the arrival in New York of Albert Hoyer, the French builder. He has come to study our "skyscraper," with a view to building in the Rue de la Mairie a 20-story apartment house on an acre and half site. The total cost will be about 6,000,000 francs—Springfield Republican.

A new democratic party has just been organized in New York. It has been labelled the "Radical Democratic," and announces as its platform "opposed to everything." It doesn't differ much from the old line party after all, and if that constitutes its whole platform, the necessity for its being is not apparent.—Lowell Mail.

Every year sees a number of buildings erected with more stories than were ever before piled one above another. If that kind of altitudinous progress continues indefinitely, the vacation problem will be solved. There will no longer be need to go to the seashore or mountains. People will simply take the elevator for the 50th story or whichever story possesses the desired summer temperature.—Boston Advertiser.

As if the recovery of King Edward VII. were not enough to discredit the fine bit of superstition growing about the decay of "the king's oak" in Censo says the New York Press, has taken the tree is simply a victim to race prejudice. Every Irish laborer near, so says the New York Press, has taken a surreptitious shy at the king's oak with shovel or spade, and no tree could be expected to survive such treatment.—Springfield Republican.

"A HELPING HAND."

Is Gladly Extended by a Portsmouth Citizen.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Portsmouth prepared to tell their experience for the public good. Testify between the shoulders or down the evidence and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement.

Mr. William R. Weston of No. 1 Woodbury avenue, says:—"For a year or more I had kidney trouble, sometimes attacking me more severely than others. In every instance I had more or less dizziness, headache, soreness over the kidneys, pains shooting Diphtheria relieved in twenty minutes and too frequent action of the kidney secretions. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box at Philbrick's pharmacy in the Franklin block. Well, they went right to the spot at once. I never got anything to approach them. I can honestly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

BANKRUPT'S PETITION FOR DISCHARGE.

In the District Court of the United States for the District of New Hampshire.

In the matter of Wm. W. Wilder, Bankrupt.

To the Honorable, Edgar Aldrich, Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of New Hampshire:—

Wm. W. Wilder of Newton in the County of Rockingham and State of New Hampshire, in said District, respectfully represents that on the 15th day of March, 1902, last past, he was duly adjudged bankrupt under the acts of Congress relating to bankruptcy; that he has duly surrendered all his property, and rights of property and has fully complied with all the requirements of said acts and of the orders of the court touching his bankruptcy.

Wherefore he prays that he may be declared by the court to have a full discharge from all his debts, except such debts as are excepted by law from such discharge.

Dated this 20th day of June, A. D., 1902. W. W. Wilder, Bankrupt.

Order of Notice Thereon.

District of New Hampshire, ss.

On this 20th day of June, A. D., 1902, on reading the foregoing petition, it is—

Ordered by the court, that a notice be and upon the same on the 15th day of July, A. D., 1902, before said court at Concord in said District, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice thereof be published in the Portsmouth Herald, a newspaper printed in said District, and that all known creditors and other persons in interest may appear at the said time and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered by the court, that the clerk shall send by mail to all known creditors notices of said petition and this order, addressed to them at their places of residence as stated.

Witness the Honorable Edgar Aldrich, judge of the said court, and its seal thereon. At Concord, in said District, on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1902.

Burns v. Hobbins, Clerk.

THE UP-TO-DATE JERSEY CENTRAL.

There was a general change of time on the New Jersey Central on June 29, when the full Summer schedule went into effect, including a complete service on the Sandy Hook Boats. It has been the aim of the managers to give the best service possible and for months preparations have been going on. Nearly 60 new locomotives have been put in service within the past two weeks and many new cars added to the equipment. The road-bed has received much attention—miles of new rail laid and thousands of tons of ballast spread. The station grounds improved and beautified, and all this in addition to the increased service.

A new morning train for Newark, starting from Dunellen, has been put on. Several trains have been added to the Newark and New York Branch. There is a fast train to Somerville at 5:10 p. m., making Plainfield first stop.

New day stops have been arranged for several of the Philadelphia Expresses at Elizabeth and Plainfield.

Peith Amboy is to have a fast train to New York at 5:10 p. m. The Seashore Division including the Sandy Hook Boats and will have complete schedules, and new connections have been made wherever possible. There will be a Saturday Special at 1:00 p. m., for Atlantic City, and a Sunday train at 5:30 from Atlantic City to New York, both of which for Beach Haven, this in addition to the connections made by the other Shore flyers.

Through car lines have been provided between Newark and Port Pleasant and Mauch Chunk and Philadelphia.

All freight trains on the Boston and Maine railroad were cancelled Friday and the local freight house and offices were closed.

ARTS OF THE ARGENTINE.

The Great South American Republic To Be Strongly in Evidence at the World's Fair.

World's Fair Grounds St. Louis, July 2.—Latter received from Jose de Oliveira, World's fair commissioner to the Argentine Republic, Chile and Bolivia, bring the information, that important action has been taken with reference to the exhibit of that country at the Louisiana Purchase exposition. He writes: "The Argentine National Museum of Fine Arts has recently accepted the invitation to participate in the World's Fair, and estimates are now being made as to space that will be required in the Fine Arts building at St. Louis. Senior Eduardo Schachtel, director of the national museum of the arts, called at the office in person on Monday last to notify me of the official acceptance of the invitation which is now being put into writing and will be sent to me."

"The director is very enthusiastic over the outcome of the negotiations and assures me that he will use every effort to surpass any art exhibit ever before made by this country. The National Museum here is accredited with possessing the largest collection of fine arts in South America, not accepting the Chilean museums, and includes many subjects that have won high awards at Paris and elsewhere before being installed here. The Fine Arts department is a national institution and its action involves the government, in that the expense of sending the exhibit is to be borne by the department of public instruction."

"Senor Francisco Segui, member of Argentine congress, has just reported the result of his interview with President Roca with the object of securing the financial support of the government on behalf of the national chamber of commerce, 'La Union Industrial Argentina,' at the World's fair. The interview was entirely favorable, the president expressing his approval of the measure and recommending the 'Union Industrial' on its enterprise in co-operating with the World's fair. The plan is to send general national exhibits through the medium of the Industriales, the latter having the principal elements already in hand, which will result in the saving of an immense amount of time and expense in the general work of preparation."

"In addition to the Fine Arts and Industrial exhibits, I am hopeful of securing an interesting naval display consisting of models and plans of the modern Argentine war ships, which are of such a class as would reflect credit upon any country."

Nearly all the large wholesale and retail stores in Boston are giving their help an extra holiday today.

Education is still needed among farmers to take up their ideas in methods of producing pure milk, said the late L. F. Abbott of Maine. The thought with many people is that milk is obtained only by the introduction of foreign bodies directly into the milk. It is true that this is a prolific source of bad flavored butter and cheese, but not the only one. It does not occur to these farmers that taints may be introduced to these products through the organism of the cow by her breathing an impure and tainted atmosphere. Well conditioned instances are on record where cows at pasture, breathing air polluted by curran, carried the taint to their milk and seriously affected the whole product of the factories to which the milk was sent.

The modern barn, with close tieup and cellar used as a depository for the accumulation of manure through the winter, is more suggestive of tainted milk when cows are confined in such quarters. The old, lax notions of allowing cows to stand and to lie down in their ordure six months of the year, accepting the conditions of filthiness the cows take on in consequence as a matter of course, are not yet all obsolete. And yet these farmers think they are targets for persecution if the factory management insists upon a reform in their practice on penalty of exclusion from the factory.

Neck of Good Dairy Cow.

The general appearance of the head and neck of a good type of dairy cow as seen from the front while looking down is brought out very nicely in the illustration reproduced from farmers' bulletin No. 143 issued by the United States department of agriculture. The thinness of the neck on top and the flatness on the side characteristic of the type are very well shown. The fineness of the neck where it blends with the head and the freedom from dewlap show breeding and quality. The spareness of flesh desired in the dairy type and the flatness of the neck where it joins the shoulder make the neck very marked in this class of animals—so much so, in fact, that the shoulder seems to be abnormally developed when compared with the beef type.

DAIRY COW'S NECK AS SEEN FROM ABOVE AND IN FRONT.

CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS.

How The Treacherous Soap Cracker Got In Its Work.

Made Quite A Record For Himself On The Glorious Fourth.

One Youth Went To The Hospital—Others Didn't Have To.

The dynamite cracker got in its deadly work Thursday night and Friday, and in consequence several young men are today nursing badly injured hands.

William Frazier, chief at the Rockingham, met with a distressing accident on Thursday evening, which resulted in the loss of a thumb and three fingers of his right hand.

Mr. Frazier was in one of the bath rooms of the hotel, and lighted a large dynamite cracker, intending to throw it out of the window. He supposed that the window was open, and threw the cracker carelessly away, having no doubt that it would land safely outside, and explode there.

As it happened, however, the window was closed and the cracker struck against the pane and bounded back into the room.

The apartment is a small one, and in the confined space, Mr. Frazier was unable to avoid the cracker, and it exploded close to his hand.

The force of the explosion was terrific, and Mr. Frazier's right hand was shattered badly.

He called loudly for aid, and several of the bell boys, attracted by his cries, hastened to his assistance.

Dr. Jenkins was hastily summoned, and he made the injured man as comfortable as possible. He decided that it was necessary to remove Mr. Frazier to the hospital, and this was accordingly done.

The doctor found that it was necessary to amputate the thumb and three of the fingers.

Mr. Frazier is very popular in this city, and his many friends will sympathize with him deeply. His is the first serious mishap in connection with the celebration of the Fourth in this section.

At half-past four on Friday morning Harry Snow had the fingers of his right hand badly lacerated and the skin partially removed from his right forefinger, by the explosion of a dynamite cracker. The thumb was blown full of powder and the hand badly burned. It is not believed that amputation of the fingers will be necessary. In Snow's case the cracker did not explode in his hand, but he held it too long and it went off in the air, the force of the explosion driving it back against his hand. The wounds were dressed by Dr. Jenkins.

At eleven-thirty, Walter Roberts, paymaster's clerk at the dry dock, inadvertently allowed a large cracker to explode in his hand and sustained severe burns and lacerations. His fingers will be saved, however, and it is not believed that their usefulness will be impaired. Dr. Jenkins was standing near by at the moment of the accident and promptly went to Roberts' aid.

About an hour later, William F. Mulen, a musician in the Naval band, was injured in an almost exactly similar manner, and to about the same degree. As in Robert's case, Dr. Jenkins came to the wounds.

At five o'clock in the afternoon, Dr. Jenkins was again called upon, this time to remove a twenty-two calibre bullet from the finger of a ten year old boy, named Fred Jones. The lad was taken to the Cottage hospital and placed under the influence of the ether. The bullet had passed diagonally through the boy's right forefinger and lodged in the second joint. The bullet was removed, and the lad was discharged from the hospital.

On Friday morning, a man was brought to this city from Union, and taken to the Cottage hospital. He had suffered injuries very similar to those of Frazier, although perhaps not quite so severe. Dr. Berry was summoned, and amputated the forefinger of the right hand and a portion of the second finger. The doctor believes that he will be able to save the injured man's thumb. The name of the stranger, at his own request, was not divulged by the matron at the hospital.

WITH BIG FAMILY DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Gilze Celebrate Their Golden Wedding at New Castle.

Each of the members of the family of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Gilze, a family dinner was given at their home in New Castle on Friday when more than forty relatives sat down to a generous feast.

From four to six p. m. there was an "at home," at which scores of neighbors and friends appeared to offer their congratulations.

Charles H. Gilze was born in Dover, N. H., 27, 1832, and lived there until 1877, when he moved to New Castle. He was a member of the New Castle branch of the Grand Old Law of 1800.

Returning to Lawrence after receiving from a severe illness, he engaged there in the express and repair business, which he carried on until 1899, when with his family he moved to New Castle, where they have since made their home.

Martha Hayward Gilze is a native of Portsmouth, and was born on New Castle avenue, Nov. 8, 1855.

On July 3, 1852, the couple were married at Dover by Rev. Homer Parsons, and after paying the clergyman his fee, their joint wealth made the very moderate sum of fifty cents. This was a rather light capital to begin married life on, but they had abundant love and abundant courage, and after boarding a few months, found themselves able to set up housekeeping.

Three children were born of this union, two dying when quite young; one daughter, Miss Helen B. Gilze, is living and makes her home with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilze are both members of the Free Will Baptist church, on the services of which they have been blessed with good health, and are held in the highest respect and esteem by their townsmen.

HOLIDAY HAPPENINGS.

How The Fourth Passed Here In Portsmouth.

Plenty Of Noise And Enthusiasm To Spare.

Regatta, Shoot, Baseball, Golf, Band Concerts, Open Club Houses And Fireworks.

The great and glorious Fourth of July in Portsmouth was distinguished by ideal weather, plenty of noise, and enthusiasm to spare.

More accidents occurred than for many years, none of them, however, of a serious nature.

One drunk was all the police dragged in during the day. In fact, it was uncommonly quiet at headquarters.

In the afternoon hundreds of people scrambled for seats on the trolley cars and went out to Hampton beach. The street railway company had to press into use every available car. The attractions at Hampton included concerts by the Haverhill solo band, performances by Gorman's Alabama Troubadours in the Casino theatre and a superb display of fireworks after dark.

Here in town several of the social organizations, among them the Athletic, Warwick and Yacht clubs, kept open house, and there were quite a number of house parties.

The evening sky was radiant with rockets, balloons and fireballs ascending from all parts of the city. Perhaps the most elaborate pyrotechnical attempt, locally, was made by the Italian colony employed by the White Mountain Paper company, at Freeman's Point. They had "chipped in" almost $150 for fireworks and the spectacle from this city was a handsome one.

An account of the holiday happenings given more in detail, follows:

The Baseball Games.

There were two Fourth of July baseball games in this city, both played in the forenoon. The nine representing the Granite Cutters' union defeated the Veteran Firemen, on the old Lookout diamond, in a one-sided contest, twenty-five to six.

The game between the Retail Clerks' association and the Butchers' union teams at the Plains, was a good one. It was hotly contested from start to finish, and the result was in doubt up to the very last. The clerks finally won out by a score of six to five. The proceeds of the game, which will amount to a considerable sum, will be handed over to the secretary of the City Improvement society.

The Maplewoods journeyed to North Berwick on the Fourth and broke even with the strong team of that town in the morning they won, eleven to ten, and in the afternoon North Berwick was victorious, eleven to nine. Both were good games to see. The battery work for the Maplewoods was done by Tilley and Mara in the morning and Mara, Frank Woods and Tilley in the afternoon. Capt. Clark of the Portsmouth team was ill and unable to play.

Gun Club Shoot.

The Portsmouth Gun club had a very interesting shoot on the Fourth at its range near the Plains. There were present as invited guests members of the gun clubs in Exeter, Dover, and other places, who were royally entertained. In the various events prizes were competed for which had been donated to the club by the leading business firms of the city. Some excellent marksmanship was displayed.

Damage To Windows.

The front windows in the shop occupied by W. B. Mathes, the tailor, on Vaughan street, were completely wrecked on the afternoon of the Fourth by some violent explosive, the exact nature of which is a mystery. It was probably a dynamite cannon cracker, but it left no trace and who hurled it is not known. Persons who were near by when the damage was done say the missile did not strike directly against the glass, but landed on the sidewalk, and quite a hole in the pavement in front of the shop seems to bear out this statement. The noise of the explosion was tremendous.

A window on the Vaughan street side of Hewitt's clothing establishment was also demolished some time early in the morning.

Somebody aimed a 22-calibre revolver squarely at one of the windows in the shop of John Mott, the cobbler, on Congress street, during the celebration of the holiday, and sent a bullet crashing through the pane. The bullet lodged in the woodwork inside the shop, where it was found.

Open Air Band Concerts.

The Portsmouth City band was heard in two excellent concerts on Market square, on the afternoon and evening of the Fourth. The playing of the local musicians, called forth much praise. A large crowd surrounded the bandstand and was lined up around the square during the evening concert. Director Medcalf conducted his men through the following selections:

Afternoon Program.

March, "Victory." Bond

Overture, "American." Catlin

Medley, "Mills Merry Melodies." Smith

HOLIDAY HAPPENINGS.

How The Fourth Passed Here In Portsmouth.

Plenty Of Noise And Enthusiasm To Spare.

Regatta, Shoot, Baseball, Golf, Band Concerts, Open Club Houses And Fireworks.

The great and glorious Fourth of July in Portsmouth was distinguished by ideal weather, plenty of noise, and enthusiasm to spare.

More accidents occurred than for many years, none of them, however, of a serious nature.

One drunk was all the police dragged in during the day. In fact, it was uncommonly quiet at headquarters.

In the afternoon hundreds of people scrambled for seats on the trolley cars and went out to Hampton beach. The street railway company had to press into use every available car. The attractions at Hampton included concerts by the Haverhill solo band, performances by Gorman's Alabama Troubadours in the Casino theatre and a superb display of fireworks after dark.

Here in town several of the social organizations, among them the Athletic, Warwick and Yacht clubs, kept open house, and there were quite a number of house parties.

The evening sky was radiant with rockets, balloons and fireballs ascending from all parts of the city. Perhaps the most elaborate pyrotechnical attempt, locally, was made by the Italian colony employed by the White Mountain Paper company, at Freeman's Point. They had "chipped in" almost $150 for fireworks and the spectacle from this city was a handsome one.

An account of the holiday happenings given more in detail, follows:

The Baseball Games.

There were two Fourth of July baseball games in this city, both played in the forenoon. The nine representing the Granite Cutters' union defeated the Veteran Firemen, on the old Lookout diamond, in a one-sided contest, twenty-five to six.

The game between the Retail Clerks' association and the Butchers' union teams at the Plains, was a good one. It was hotly contested from start to finish, and the result was in doubt up to the very last. The clerks finally won out by a score of six to five. The proceeds of the game, which will amount to a considerable sum, will be handed over to the secretary of the City Improvement society.

The Maplewoods journeyed to North Berwick on the Fourth and broke even with the strong team of that town in the morning they won, eleven to ten, and in the afternoon North Berwick was victorious, eleven to nine. Both were good games to see. The battery work for the Maplewoods was done by Tilley and Mara in the morning and Mara, Frank Woods and Tilley in the afternoon. Capt. Clark of the Portsmouth team was ill and unable to play.

Gun Club Shoot.

The Portsmouth Gun club had a very interesting shoot on the Fourth at its range near the Plains. There were present as invited guests members of the gun clubs in Exeter, Dover, and other places, who were royally entertained. In the various events prizes were competed for which had been donated to the club by the leading business firms of the city. Some excellent marksmanship was displayed.

Damage To Windows.

The front windows in the shop occupied by W. B. Mathes, the tailor, on Vaughan street, were completely wrecked on the afternoon of the Fourth by some violent explosive, the exact nature of which is a mystery. It was probably a dynamite cannon cracker, but it left no trace and who hurled it is not known. Persons who were near by when the damage was done say the missile did not strike directly against the glass, but landed on the sidewalk, and quite a hole in the pavement in front of the shop seems to bear out this statement. The noise of the explosion was tremendous.

A window on the Vaughan street side of Hewitt's clothing establishment was also demolished some time early in the morning.

Somebody aimed a 22-calibre revolver squarely at one of the windows in the shop of John Mott, the cobbler, on Congress street, during the celebration of the holiday, and sent a bullet crashing through the pane. The bullet lodged in the woodwork inside the shop, where it was found.

A PUBLIC RECEPTION.

New Hampshire Congressional Delegation To Have "One."

Their Visit To Be Made An Occasion Of Importance.

Senators Gallinger And Burnham And Congressmen Sulloway And Currier Coming Here Soon.

The coming visit of the New Hampshire congressional delegation to this city will be made an important occasion, if the arrangements already proposed are successfully carried out.

Senators Gallinger and Burnham and Congressmen Sulloway and Currier will arrive in Portsmouth week after next. They have given assurance of this.

It is planned to give them a public reception, the details of which are being provided for.

The members of the delegation, while here, will visit the navy yard, take a good look at the new dry dock and probably inspect Henderson's Point, the spit of land which earned such fame in both houses of congress during the session just closed.

It is believed that the citizens of Portsmouth generally will be very glad to meet New Hampshire's senators and representatives, and there seems no better way to bring this about than by means of a reception open to all.

Just at this time, when greater opportunities than ever before are opening up for the Portsmouth navy yard, it seems quite fitting that the people of this section should have a handshake and a few words with their representatives in congress—in short, become perhaps a little better acquainted with them.

WAS HIT FREELY.

Newport Lost a Baseball Game at New- port on the Fourth.

The strong independent ball teams of Newport and Claremont, played two games on the Fourth, Newport winning the first, five to nothing, and Claremont the second, nine to six. Rollins of Dartmouth pitched for Newport in the first game, with Bert Wilbur of Greenland behind the bat. Wilbur appeared at bat four times, made one run, two hits, eight put-outs, no assists and no errors.

Ira Newick of this city, another Dartmouth twirler, was in the box for Newport in the afternoon, and Campbell, the Andover pitcher, did the twirling for Claremont. Newick was hit rather freely. Claremont getting nine safe ones, but wild throwing was largely responsible for Newport's defeat. Newick made one run and one hit, and played a remarkable fielding game, having ten assists to his credit. Wilbur again played an errorless game on the afternoon, making seven put-outs, but others appeared in his run and assist columns.

WAS SMASHING FURNITURE.

Daniel Hurley indulges in a Belated Celebration.

Officers Shannin and McCaffery were summoned to the dwelling of one Mrs. Varney, on the second floor of the building containing the provision store of H. T. Ridge, on Daniel street, about half-past one this afternoon.

Upon their arrival, they found Daniel Hurley, a well known character, with a jag of enormous proportions, amusing himself by demolishing Mrs. Varney's furniture. Hurley recognized the officers and accompanied them from the police station quietly enough, where he was locked up.

DIED IN BOSTON.

The news was received here Friday of the death on Thursday evening of Daniel Marcy Cunningham, in Boston. He was the elder son of Shirley Cunningham, in Boston. He was about thirty-four years of age and had been sick a long time. The body will be brought here today for interment in the family lot.
